Straightforward and objective writing --
Lavishly illustrated with photographs and memorabilia -- Essential for multicultural studies

Madam C.J. Walker, the first woman - black or white - to become a self-made millionaire, started out as a laundress with few prospects. Originally named Sarah Breedlove (December 23, 1867 - May 25, 1919), known as Madam C. J. Walker, was an African-American entrepreneur, philanthropist, and businesswoman whose invention of facial creams and other cosmetics led to great financial success. She moved to Denver, Colorado, and she moved to Indianapolis, Indiana, where she founded the first African American-owned business, the Madam C.J. Walker Manufacturing Company. She was also a philanthropist and supported the construction of an Indianapolis YMCA. Her legacy is celebrated in the book *Madam C.J.
