

10 Shocking True Crime Stories of America's Worst Serial Killers True Murder Cases included in this volume; Patrick Kearney: a.k.a. The Trash Bag killer, despite standing just 5'5", Kearney cut a swathe of destruction across southern California, leaving at least 35 dismembered corpses in his wake. Martha Beck and Raymond Fernandez: an obese, sex-starved nurse and a toupee wearing Latin lothario, who duped and then murdered lonely women in 1940s New York. Dennis Rader: the notorious and elusive BTK Killer, who held the citizens of Wichita, Kansas in a state of terror for over 30 years, before his eventual capture. Earle Nelson: the inhuman "Gorilla Killer", who rampaged through 1920s America and into Canada, killing and raping as he went. Charles Schmid: known as the Pied Piper of Tucson, Schmid had an almost cult-like following of teenaged devotees who would do anything for him - even participate in murder. Joel Rifkin: a born loser who failed at everything he tried - except murder. Rifkin killed and dismembered as many as 17 women. Herb Mullin: a deadly psychotic, Mullin killed with guns, knives and bludgeons, all because he believed he could prevent an earthquake by committing murder. John Joubert: serial killer snatched three young boys off the street in broad daylight, then tortured and stabbed them to death. Paul John Knowles: rejection by his fiancée triggered a murder spree across 25 states during which 18 people were brutally slain for the amusement of the, so-called, Casanova Killer. Larry Eyler: a deadly, gay serial killer who trawled the freeways of the American Midwest for victims who he literally tore apart. Ray and Faye Copeland: Ray was 76, Faye 69, but that didn't stop them murdering five men - for the most unusual of motives. Cary Stayner: For 30 years Cary Stayner fantasized about murdering a woman, then he snapped, with deadly consequences for the four unfortunates who crossed his path. ??????????
